

I have high speed internet cable. I can get DSL I don't need Broad band over power lines. When I first heard about it I thought, neat. But the damage it will do to Aircraft reception and ham operators is not needed. Remember, it's ham radio that is ready for emergencies. Polute the airwaves and run the hams out and you will have no long range communications ready if terrorist take out the power grid.